Description

Odin was a big horse, bigger than the common one. According to Keldar, this horse should be related to the sleipnir. A subspecies of very fast horses which inhabit the Far North.

It had a dark coat like the night and it was blind in one eye, specifically, the right one.

Personality

Odin was a very clever horse, but stubborn. During all of Putnam's travels, it served as his friend and confessor, in a way. Its intelligence was such that it even managed to save the witcher on different occasions.

Biography

Odin was found by a young Putnam near Kaer Seren, when he was only 10 years old, and the animal was injured. Putnam made his effort and took it to the fortress, where he cured and cared for the animal, trying to convince his teachers to keep it.

After much effort and many days, Putnam finally managed to convince them and from that day until the death of the animal he took charge of the creature.

Odin accompanied the witcher on many trips, among them are the trips made by Putnam to the east and north. The animal died in the year 1300 of old age.

Trivia

- Similar to Geralt of Rivia. Putnam, after losing Odin, named the rest of the horses he had in his life after his first horse.
- Putnam had a very similar relationship to that of the Geralt of Rivia of Netflix's adaptation with Roach.
